

Angel's Redemption

Screenplay by Samantha Markle and Christopher Murphy

Angels walk where men fear to tread.

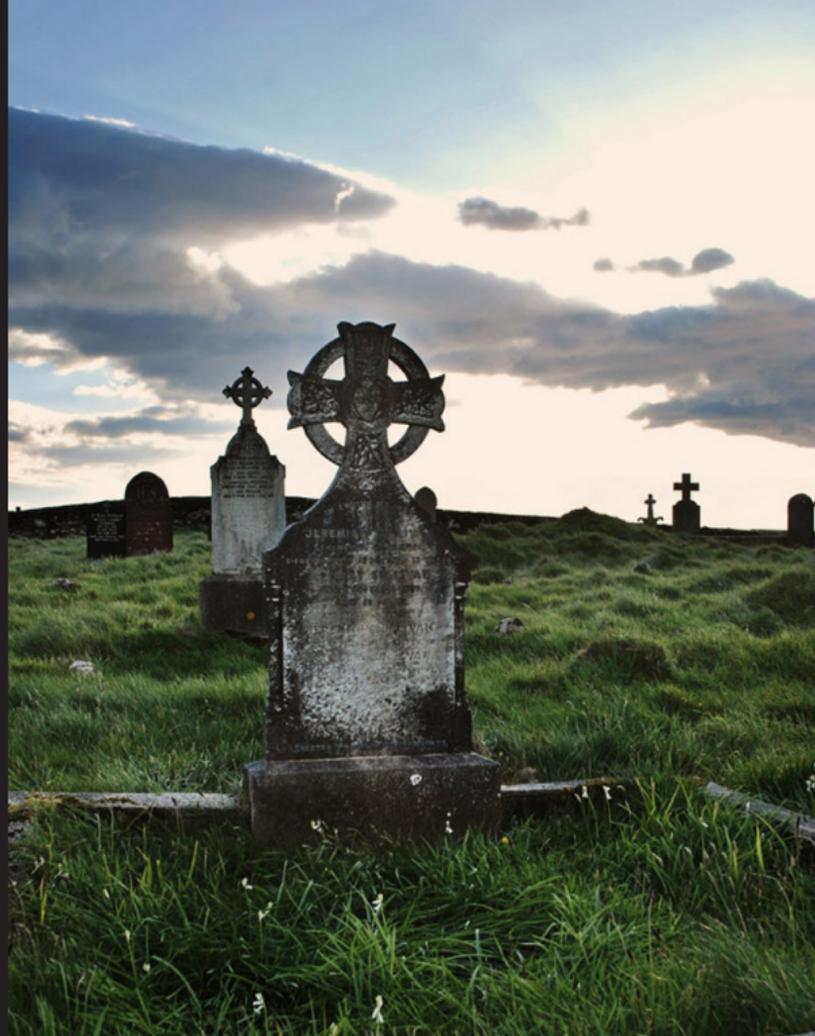

SYNOPSIS

Bobby "Angel" Butler has been adopted into a poor family by a mysterious local priest. As he grows up in poverty with his younger brother Jack, Bobby does his best not to be tempted into a life of crime.

His fascination with Angels grows and he begins to get a tattoo of Angels wings across his back. When their mother becomes seriously ill, Bobby goes against her wishes and begins to make money with the local crime syndicate to help pay for her medication and hopes of a better life. Mistakenly believing he can leave anytime, he is forced against his will to become a career criminal. His mother and brother feel betrayed and she passes away while he is gone. 12 long years pass, Bobby Angel is now a feared and ruthless criminal.

Dealing with corrupt policeman, gangsters and local drug dealers. Always looking for the bigger deal, the one that will give him the power and control of the city. His Angels wings across his back nears completion. The city's hard chief of police, Conor Bestwood is known as "The General". No crime deals in the city pass without his having a piece of the action. His son Paul Bestwood is a dark and unscrupulous character, carrying out his fathers orders. Bobby reluctantly has to go thru them to do business. But it seems Bobby has grander plans without them. As a result he is set up during a deal. It goes horribly wrong and he is chased by police. A shootout occurs during his escape and a stray bullet kills his girlfriend in front of their young child Angela. Bobby Is sentenced to 10 yrs in prison for manslaughter. Inside prison he realises his life has been meaningless. Full of wrong choices that have led to nothing but unhappiness and pain. After the priest visits him in jail and reveals the truth of how and where Bobby came from, he completely breaks down, having a psychotic episode in which he sees light flooding into his cell. He's sent to a mental institution where upon regaining his senses he does everything he can to right his wrongs. Upon serving his 10 year sentence he is released. He quickly sets about reconnecting to those he caused pain and suffering to but nobody believes the once feared Bobby Angel has changed. While in prison Angela was placed into care with her elderly grandmother Helen. A cold hearted bitter woman who cares only for money and her fading looks. With the local criminals wanting to pay Helen to give her to them, she's tempted to sell Angela into the dark underworld of sex trafficking. Unknown to Bobby, his brother Jack has since become a Policeman. Resisting the temptation to become corrupt. He is uncovering the murky world of the local sex trafficking and drug dealing that goes all the way to the highest office. Their two paths will inevitably collide once again. As Bobby now reappears on the scene and into Angelas life as a stranger he realise he must gether away from her evil grandmother and the crime lords once and for all, to find peace and a new beginning for them both. Now on the run together and with the criminals and corrupt police on their trail they manage to hide out on a countryside farm run by an orphanage institution. The kind hearted owner Abbey, agrees to hide them. Bobby and Angelas bond grow close, with Angela now looking upon Bobby as her Guardian Angel . With lies being spread about Bobby all the police are told to get him at any price. And with the criminals offering a price on his head he and Angelas escape looks doomed. As the net tightens they are discovered, they are left with only one choice. To confront their past and fight for their lives with right on their side. As the mysterious priest watches from afar we begin to see Bobbys desperate plight for forgiveness from Angela that can lead only to his redemption from his life of crime, that will lead him to a higher place on this earth or the next, with his true incredible identity finally being revealed.
